

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction

xv

CHAPTER 1

The origins of the good performance of the Public Administration

1. The (problematic) concept of administration	1
2. The origins of public administration in Italy	9
3. The interference of politics in the process of “constitutionalisation” of the administrative function	17
4. Identifying good performance of public administration	21
4.1. Problematic profiles of the relationship between public administration and political power	21
4.2. The administrative models of good administration from the constitutional perspective	23
5. The art. 97 of the Constitution	29
5.1. The constitutional role of the administration. The work of the Constituent Assembly	29
5.2. The phrase “good performance”	38
6. Identity and role of the administration in the Constitution	46
7. The principle of good administration from the European perspective	51
7.1. The move from the duty of good performance to the right of good administration. The art. 41 of the Charter of Nice	51
7.2. The scope of application of European law to good administration	63

CHAPTER 2

The recipients of the principle of good performance

1. The principle of good performance as the objective of the administrative organization and the administrative activity	69
2. The principle of good performance: un imperative for the legislator	75
3. The subjective perspective of the administration	80
3.1. The administrative organization in the Constitution	80
3.2. The good performance between the relative reserve of law and the power of self-organization of the public administration	83
3.3. The State and the indirect administration: administrative decentralization	90

4.	The objective perspective of the administration	99
4.1.	The “good” administrative activity	99
4.2.	The principles of good administration	102
4.3.	The explanation of the good performance in the procedure of the administrative activity	108
5.	The actual meaning public administration	115
5.1.	A notion beyond the Constitution	115
5.2.	The functional profile of the administration and the uncertain boundaries of public bodies	122
6.	The principle of good performance and judicial bodies	130

CHAPTER 3

The “content” of the principle of good performance

1.	The principle of impartiality	135
1.1.	The relationship between the principle of good performance and the principle of impartiality	135
1.2.	Dependence or autonomy?	143
2.	The duty of good administration	147
3.	The meaning of the principle of good performance	152
3.1.	The challenging analysis of the principle of good performance	152
3.2.	Beyond administrative efficiency: rationality, transparency, credibility, functionality	157
4.	The efficiency of the public administration	160
4.1.	The administration of results	160
4.2.	The legal meaning of the concept of efficiency	164
5.	The principle of legality: foundation and limitation of administrative efficiency	168
6.	A functional, efficient, rational administrative system	175
7.	Simplification as a means of good administration	181
8.	The administrative controls	189
8.1.	The internal control system as a guarantee of good performance	189
8.2.	Sound management as a corollary of the principle of good performance	192

CHAPTER 4

The good performance as a parameter of the judgment of constitutional legitimacy

1.	Good performance as a parameter of constitutional legitimacy	199
2.	Good performance as principle of rationality	205

3. Participation and due administrative process as prerequisites for good administration?	215
4. The good performance as an “absent case” principle	226
5. Two application cases	234
5.1. a) The good performance in public tenders	234
5.2. b) The phenomenon of the spoils system	242

CHAPTER 5

The “future” of the good performance: the process of digitalization of the public administration

1. The modern administration	257
1.1. The administration keeping up with the time	257
1.2. Information technology as a tool for the good performance of the administrative organization	261
2. The process of digitalization of public administration	266
3. E-Government and the new identity of the administration	275
4. The IT coordination of the administrative organization	282
4.1. Testing technological innovation for simplification	282
4.2. Testing the efficiency of technological innovation	286
5. The new frontier of good performance	291
5.1. The algorithmic administration	291
5.2. The algorithmic decision: applicative problems and open questions	295
6. The automated administrative procedure in regard to the good performance of the administrative action	301
7. Sincere digital cooperation: interoperability between IT systems	308
8. The future of digitalization of the public administration in regard to good performance, regulatory needs and application difficulties. Is this a new fundamental right?	313

Bibliography	321
---------------------	-----

Abstract	349
-----------------	-----