

TABLE OF CONTENTS

CHAPTER 1

Definition of the research question

1. Introduction	1
2. Mental disabilities and constitutional framework	15
2.1. Personalist principle and disabilities	21
2.2. Social pluralism and disabilities	27
2.3. Solidarity and disabilities	32
2.4. Equality, diversity, disabilities. Equal social dignity and full development of the person: the conditions for the right to socialization	36
3. Disabilities and the European Union. From the Treaty of Amsterdam to the implementation of the anti-discrimination law	44
3.1. The Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union: the protection of persons with disabilities beyond work, in other social entities	47
3.2. The European Disability Strategies: growing attention to the issue of mental disabilities	50
4. Mental disabilities at international level. The role of the World Health Organization	53
4.1. The UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities	56
4.2. The reference to mental disabilities in the UN Convention	63

CHAPTER 2

Mental disabilities, legal capacity and independent living

1. From the model of “superfluity” to the medical rehabilitation model, up to the affirmation of the social model of disabilities	67
2. Paternalism and mental disabilities: consequences for self-determination	73
2.1. Mental disabilities and legal capacity : what challenges for the law	81
2.2. The ‘breaking’ of the binomial mental disability-incapacity. Supported decision-making of the person with disabilities, instead of substitute decision-making	92
3. Mental disabilities and the right to independent living	95

3.1. The Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergency, of the UN Committee on the rights of persons with disabilities	98
3.2. Trials of deinstitutionalization: the slow overcoming of “services - facilities”	101

CHAPTER 3

From the first deinstitutionalization to the building of the system of rights for the person with mental disabilities

1. Mental disabilities: from custodial to caring purposes	107
2. The Mariotti law and the period of the constitutional thaw	110
3. Legislative developments of the 70s: the approval of the Basaglia law	113
3.1. From the Basaglia law to the approval of the law establishing the National Health Service	124
3.2. The grafting of the psychiatric reform into the healthcare reform and the reasons for a non-immediate implementation	127
3.3. The difficulties in implementing the reform, the inertia of regional legislators and the role of the target Projects	133
4. The slow building of a protection system for persons with disabilities: from compensatory protection to the implementation of a system of rights	139
5. The framework law n. 104/1992: from health protection to the relevance of socialization	143
6. The issue of residential services	145

CHAPTER 4

Towards a second deinstitutionalization? The implementation of the life project of the person with mental disabilities

1. The National Recovery and Resilience Plan and the prospects for a paradigm shift: law no. 227/2021 and the promotion of independent living	153
2. A new step towards social and health integration	162
2.1. Social and health integration and regions: the personal health budget	168
2.2. The personal health budget as a tool for implementing the individual, personalized and participatory life project	170
2.3. The personal health budget: between trials, issues and potential	176
3. Personalization of care interventions	179

3.1. The personalized project in the regulatory evolution: from the law n. 112/2016 to the law n. 227/2021	183
3.2. The participation of the person with mental disabilities in the elaboration of the individual, personalized and participatory life project	186
4. Paths of deinstitutionalization for the affirmation of independent living: from law n. 112/2016 to the implementation of the NRRP	189
Concluding remarks	199
Bibliography	211
Abstract	237